June 6, 2018

CLEVELAND, OH. – The Kamm's Corners Farmers Market opens outdoors on Sunday, June 10, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Now in its 12th season, the market provides a festive atmosphere to purchase fresh produce and more in West Park. Operating every Sunday through October 14, rain or shine, it is located in the heart of Kamm's Corners in the municipal parking lot behind Walgreens at West 168th Street and Lorain Avenue.

In addition to fresh, locally grown produce, Kamm's Corners Farmers Market features artisans, health awareness activities, local chef demonstrations, and live music. Opening day kicks off with exciting activities including:

- Goods from more than 30 vendors.
- Live music by local favorite Pete Cavano.
- Chef demo from the celebrated "farm to table" restaurant, AMP 150, at 11:30 a.m.
- Hand-painted shirts, jewelry, and garden art for sale by local artists.
- A healthy-living feature from the West Park Family YMCA.

"We have something special in the Kamm's Corners Farmers Market," said market manager Bill Markowitz. "The market has become the neighborhood town square on Sundays. Neighbors meet to shop, listen to music, and catch up on news. Through continued efforts by our volunteers, our vendors, and our local businesses, attendance and participation at the market has continually grown throughout the years."

Kamm's Corners Farmers Market is a 2018 finalist in "Best of the West" for the Farmers Market category by Cleveland Magazine and is also a previous winner.

The market accepts cash, credit, debit, and EBT. For those using the Ohio Direction Card, for every dollar spent, $1 in market tokens will be provided up to $20. So, a $20 purchase becomes $40 in healthy farm fresh fruit and vegetables. Select vendors accept WIC payments and senior vouchers.
